

ACCEPTANCE

by Nat Christian

No matter how exciting or volatile or passionate it may have been, nothing compares to the gentleness and comfort that comes with complete acceptance of the other person and yourself with her.

You share your life

It's when you open your eyes in the morning and the first thing you see is her – your pal.

It's when you put your arms around her and know that this is someone who has been through a lot, I mean a lot with you.

And, with all of your familiarity, you feel the mystique of her. You want to know more, feel more, touch more...