

True Friends
by Nat Christian
10/23/24

I've often thought that we live with two things.
Ourselves and Time.
We can go through all sorts of directions.
Decisions in life.
Exuberant times.
Melancholy times.
We make U-turns in life
But Time doesn't care. It just keeps moving on.
And nothing outlasts time. However...
True Friendships will always move along with Time.
Time will never surpass it.
And if Time ever ends. If such a phenomenon ever happens... and Time actually ends, then...
the SHARING that happens in True Friendships will continue on its own.
In the pathway of infinity, when Time is no longer,
that Sharing, in some form or way that we can't comprehend,
made up of things that we don't even know of,
may pass each other and...
they will sense in the other... a True Friend